[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] DANVILLE, VA., October 11.—The roundhouse of the Southern Railway was destroyed by fire at 4 o'clock

SOUTHERN ROUNDHOUSE DESTROYED BY FLAMES

was destroyed by fire at 4 o'clock this morning, after a dangerous fight undertaken by the two local companies to keep the flames from reaching the oil house, which adjoined the burned building, and in which was stored scores of barrels of oil. The flames were not discovered until they were shooting through the roof of the 100 by $0-foot building. Railroad men succeeded in taking the only two locomotives in the building and running them out of harm's way. The fire companies were hampered, with the scarcity of fire plugs, but they succeeded in checking the flames just as they began to set fire to the oil house. The origin of the fire is unknown. The belongings of several engineers, whose lockers were in the building, together with useful records, were destroyed. All of the machinery was ruined in the flames, which found the oll-soaked woodwork an easy prey. Trains were held up for two hours on account of the hose across the main line to Richmond.
